St Mary Magdalene Secondary

After an extended journey due to the seemingly ever-present airline delays, St Mary Magdalene finally made it to New York City. All tiredness washed away as the edifices of New York emerged on the horizon. Students and staff alike were overwhelmed as we disembarked our coach into the bombast of Times Square. Dinner gave students a proper taste of Broadway as the waitresses offered a side of showtunes to accompany the American cuisine. Appetites fully sated, the group ambled past Broadway's billboards to their hostel and bed.

The rest of the week was filled with site-seeing and culture. Students and staff alike got their steps in (minimum of 40,000 a day) as they went on a whirlwind tour of the Guggenheim, Museum of Natural History, Top of the Rock, the Statue of Liberty, Museum of Immigration and Central Park, before staff finally relented and allowed students to engage in some retail therapy.

Legs suitably sore and sites seen, our intrepid explorers embarked on a red-eye return flight to London.

I would like to extend my thanks to students for being excellent ambassadors for our school, as well as to staff for their support.
